To help guide you through the presentation, download the talking points from the website.

3. State Political Landscape

Take time to discuss upcoming races, and how to get in touch with Party leadership by sharing their contact information. All of the information you need can be found on the website. Simply select your state from the map at the bottom of the page.

4. Ways to get Involved

Included in the document you can download for state political landscape is a list of ways you and your guests can get involved and who you can contact to maximize your efforts on a local level. Again, all of the information you need can be found on the website by selecting your state on the map at the bottom.

5. Issues Discussion

Spend some time with your guests discussing the issues important to you and Democrats across the country. Take notes and make observations about what people really care about, and how they think they themselves can be a catalyst for change. You can submit your notes via the online form, or you can print the PDF version of the form and mail it. If people are interested in volunteering, you can also submit that information online, or print the PDF version of the form and mail it.

6. What's Next?

This is just the first step. As we move forward, we'll keep you active in your communities so you can help Democrats win up and down the ticket.

Note: There will be two conference calls with Gov. Dean available at 7:30pm EST and 9:45pm EST. If you are interested, please work one of these calls into your agenda.
